ricerations cught to yield. There was testimony introeuced of instances where the defendant had only charged nis greate for the fodder sonnumed by their eastle white quartered in the enclocures rearred to, where no cam was made for the occupation of the enclosure, and where the cattle were sometimes sold by the drover while in haenclosure. These facts do not affect his common law liabilities. They can only be guarded against by an express agreement with his guest. The defendant off-sed to prove that it was his custom not to charge for the use of his enclosures, but only for the feed provided for-cattle.
The offer was overruled for the reason that custom is never permitted to contravene a rule of law. The is w makes in inkeeper liable for the loss of his guest's marchancise while in the landlord's custody. This rule of law can in no manner be affected by an innkeeper's custom. The planniff is entitled to recover the value of the missing steer. Judgment against the defendant for $60 and costs.

The Carson and Leverich Difficulty Mr. John B. Leverich has forwarded to us a communi stion relative to the statements made in Mr. Car son's card, which appeared in most of the morning papers of the 14th inst. As we did not publish that and as the whole affair is to be legally is-ted, we decline to print Mr. Leverich's also. But, inserted the affidavit made by Mrs. Wyckoff, we, in justice to all parties, give the reply sworn to by Mrs.

Leverich:—

AFFIDAVIT OF MES. LEVERHOH.

The New Patent Law.

The New Parent Law.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERLAD.

In your valuable paper of this morning, under the head of "New Patent Trap," I think you arrive at a wrong consistation. The bill of Secator James, now before the Senate, will not benefit the owners of the Woodworth patent, because that was issued more than twenty years age; and the bill prevides that existing patents are renewable, "provided that the term for which such patents may be extended shall not exceed twenty years from the date of issue of the original letters patent." This clause effectually cuts off Woodworth and Goodyear from any benefit to mure from the new patent trap. The object of this new bill is to give a man the indisputable right to his invention for twenty years, and no longer. At present his right is so very equivocal, from the laxity of our patent isws, that most of the patentees who have the same of being rich are as poor as Paul Mulrooney's dog, that was forced to lean against the fence to bark. The simple truth is, that the lawyers and patent thieves are the principal gainers by the inventive genius of our countrymen.

PURLADRIFHIA, May 13, 1856.

My attention has been called to a letter purporting to be written in this city and published in your paper of Sunday, 11th instant. I find my name connected with the affairs of the Pennsylvanian, of this city. I take this ecossion to say that the state ments of the writer of that letter respecting me are one and all untrue. I do not ewn nor have I any pecuniary inverest in that paper, or enty part of its, nor have I ever, with William Rice or eithers, attempted to exercise any control over its editorial columns or its political course. The Pennsylvanian is exclusively owned and has been controlled by my breiber, W. Rice, and by him only, since the spring of 1864.

Genin's Novelties in Soft Hats-The Orien

Genin's Newelties in Soft Hats—The Ortental.—Genin, in compliance with the universal demand for these comfortable and convenient fabrics, has just introduced a wariety of styles for the spring and summer, unequalied in beauty, quality and finish by any feit hats that have heretofore been imported from Faris, or manufactured in this country. In this matchless assortment will be found styles cuitable for every age, and comprising every delicate shade of color that the art of dyeing is capable of producing. Grave and sober this for the young, diversity the extensive slock. In shapes there is an equally extensive field for choice, High crowns and low crowns and a happy medium between the two, with brims to correspond, challengs the admirstion of all tastes, however eccentric. The Oriental, the vary "beau ideal" of elegance, is pre eminent. The color is the loveliest in the world—ashes of roses; and the shape, on all its modifications for old and young, the same of classic elegances. The chaptelers" of France, just's famous as they are for their fiexible hats, have never produced anything comparable in shape, hue, or finish to Genin's Oriental. It challenges and define competition, and must inevitably be "the" soft hat of the season. In this department of the season. In the separation will be found hats adapted to all purposes. The traveller, the business man, the sportman, the professional man, the man of leisure, can fit himself with the fabric most autiable to his especial pursuit, occupation or calling. The assortment is unparabled in variety, here or abroad.
